The bad guys had voodoo dolls of astronauts. The main guy would defeat the bad guys by driving them around in a spaceship until they were out of power and recharged themselves. He would then bring them back to the ship and kill them. There was a girl who wanted to be taken along, but she didn't want to go. So, she seduced the main guy, gave him some voodoo dolls and turned the ship in his direction. It was a super cute flick. A: It could be The Amazing Colossal Man (1957). From Wikipedia The cast includes Jeff Morrow, a young actor who plays a grown man who uses his body to sustain a tank for a day, John Broome as a soldier who requires a live body as fuel, and Janos Prohaska as a scientist who is working to harness atomic power. They encounter the Colossal Man, played by Raymond Burr, which wreaks havoc in the surroundings. The Colossal Man is actually an android and is controlled by a human's brain to fight for Earth. This is what you described about the end of the film. In the climax of the picture, Colossal Man (the human) eventually captures the last three of his five remaining opponents and chases them into a safe hiding place with an atomic bomb at the bottom of a fissure. Colossal Man then redirects his bomb at the bottom of a fissure through the television screen. The human switches on the television set and directs the nuclear explosion at the four opponents through the television 6d1f23a050
