. At the same time, in the process of growth and development of the plant, there is a violation of the biosynthesis of pigments. This leads to metabolic disorders and death of the plant. Photosynthesis in a plant occurs only in the leaves, more precisely, on their surface, as a result of which light is absorbed by them. During photosynthesis, glucose is formed, which serves as the basis for building plant cells. Light absorption is a complex chemical process that takes place in a plant. dd2bc28256
