CD media configuration function on ASUS BMC#8217;s web firmware management page does not check the length of the string entered by users , resulting in buffering. The line on the CD-R/RW CD media configuration web page has fields for entering text. When the user enters text but does not use it before saving it to the CD, the length of the text may not match the CD-R/RW format. The CD media configuration feature in Web Management requires you to enter a string length consisting of Latin letters and numbers. The CD media configuration feature in Web Management requires you to enter a file number, line number, and line length.
